

Alberta Safety Council

Motor accidents and fatalities in Alberta showed a sharp downward trend in November, according to statistics compiled by the Alberta Safety Council.

The improved safety showing last month also had an overall improved effect on the accident figures for the eleven-month period.

In November, there were 22 deaths in traffic accidents, compared with 31 a year ago. Last month, there were 17 deaths at rural points reported by the RCMP, in addition to two in Edmonton, one in Medicine Hat and one in Lethbridge. Calgary had none. For the 11 months, there have been 176 traffic fatalities in the Province, 25 less than the similar period of 1953.

In November, motor accidents numbered 1,508, as against 1734 in November, 1953, last month the RCMP reported 672 at rural points, compared with 902 a year ago. Accidents in Edmonton rose from 461 to 484, but "Calgary" dropped from 254 to 254. Medicine Hat had 21, an increase of 1; and Lethbridge 38, a gain of 7. There were 10 in Jasper Place and 27 in other towns that reported.

For the 11-month period, there were 14,844 motor accidents reported, while in the corresponding period of last year the total was 15,559.

Persons injured in car accidents also showed a downward trend in November, the total decrease in November, the total being 331, or 120 below the number in November 1953. At rural points the number dropped from 335 to 173, while Edmonton rose from 52 to 86, Calgary from 30 to 52. Medicine Hat reported 30 less than a year ago. The Lethbridge report shows 11 persons injured, which is a decrease of 14.

At the end of November, Alberta had 213,724 licensed passenger cars and motor cycles and 114,706 motor trucks and trailers.

H. B. Macdonald, M.L.A. of Calgary, President of the Alberta Safety Council, commented on the November accident reports, said "it was gratifying to note the big reduction in accidents and fatalities."

He indicated that the work of the Safety Council is beginning to produce good results and justifies the time and effort expended on public education," he said.

Christmas Greetings

Leithridge Experimental Station Weekly Letter

H. CHAPMAN, Superintendent

As in the past, you and I will be sharing a lot of festive during the Christmas season and extending to them our good wishes. Christmas cards or letters will be sent to many, some of whom we have not seen for a long time. It is a good custom that, at least once a year, we express our good wishes to our friends, our actors, and to men kind in general.

The staff of the Station wish to extend their greetings to all, and particularly to those engaged in the various fields of agriculture. It is not possible for us to know all farmers and ranchers, but we like to think that they are our friends.

The aim of our research and experimental work is to improve agricultural practices, and hence to improve the standard of living of the man on the land. We believe that the Station has made contributions towards this objective.

Christmas is a time of gayety and celebration. Every year thousands of good people are busy in making living room windows tell the world that this is a happy time.

All too many of these ones Christmas trees are going to be responsible for a very unhappy Christmas. Some of them will be responsible for a very unhappy Christmas. Some of them will be responsible for a very unhappy Christmas.

Many fires are started by trees drying out and the resin igniting by a light. The best way to prevent fire is to take the tree in to be in sand which is kept moist by the frequent addition of water. The tree cut in the morning is a fresh cut. A cut 1 or 2 inches above the previous cut will expose new sap and channels for the water.

Electric Christmas tree lights should be checked carefully. If the wiring is defective short circuits could cause fire. Place the tree far from curtains, stoves or radiators. Be sure to fasten it securely. Let's keep this Christmas tragedy free!

Fishers 'Invade' Northland

Modernized fishing explained; press party visits mink ranch on second leg of northern tour

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second part of a four-part series being written by members of the Canadian Wildlife Newspaper Association, Saskatchewan Division, following a sponsored excursion of northern Saskatchewan fishermen which they visited and viewed various phases of Northern development.)

(Part 2—By Walter Teller)

A "close look" at modernized fishing operations, along with a detailed explanation by the operator launched the second leg of the Northern Journey, a tour of the province of Saskatchewan. The tour was led by Walter Teller, editor of the Northwest News, and was accompanied by the Northwest News and the Northwest News.

In this chapter, Walter Teller sets down what the quartet saw of a modern fish filleting plant, and what they heard from the operator. The tour was led by Walter Teller, editor of the Northwest News, and was accompanied by the Northwest News and the Northwest News.

he has about 20,000 customers in Canada who take supplies from a store box of fish up to 100 lbs. These have been buying regularly from him for 20 years. He also has a store box of fish up to 100 lbs. These have been buying regularly from him for 20 years. He also has a store box of fish up to 100 lbs. These have been buying regularly from him for 20 years.

We were told that Mr. Walte's explanation of how a buy-through system works is that it is a system which is based on the fact that the fishermen have to pay for the fish they catch. This is a system which is based on the fact that the fishermen have to pay for the fish they catch. This is a system which is based on the fact that the fishermen have to pay for the fish they catch.

Highlight of our visit to Big River was a pleasant surprise. It was a visit to a mink ranch. It was a visit to a mink ranch. It was a visit to a mink ranch. It was a visit to a mink ranch. It was a visit to a mink ranch. It was a visit to a mink ranch.

We hadn't talked to Mr. Walte long before we realized that here was one of the real products of the north. Deep, clear, blue, silent eyes, thin, lined and healthy looking. Quiet, unassuming and friendly. He was new money and ready to talk about Big River and the industry that was his. He was new money and ready to talk about Big River and the industry that was his.

Mr. Walte's father homesteaded Big River, but it was his son who made the country at that time was a small settlement and in 1915, Mr. Walte went west to the lumber mill. Apparently his dad, too, had been making a living out of the land. It was a small settlement and in 1915, Mr. Walte went west to the lumber mill. Apparently his dad, too, had been making a living out of the land.

In those days fishing was strictly a winter operation. He worked on Big River for a distance of about 200 miles, using no teams. He was fishing for mink. He was fishing for mink. He was fishing for mink. He was fishing for mink. He was fishing for mink. He was fishing for mink.

Today Mr. Walte employs about 110 people on the joint payroll. He has one plane, and he has a year-old new plane, and he has a year-old new plane, and he has a year-old new plane. He has one plane, and he has a year-old new plane, and he has a year-old new plane. He has one plane, and he has a year-old new plane, and he has a year-old new plane.

After being transported from Buffalo Narrows to Big River by truck or barge, the fish is shipped by rail and truck. In the last few years Mr. Walte has turned more to the use of thermal power for transporting fish to the market, which is more economical and faster. It is now only five days to reach New York and Boston.

Mr. Walte presently visits his markets three or four times a year to obtain contracts which are placed at six to eight months in advance. Most of his markets are in the United States, Mr. Walte said.

SASKATCHEWAN GOVERNMENT Airways plane (the green one) at the fish filleting plant in northern Saskatchewan, on Carleton place.

plane in the Northern District for the department of Natural Resources, and we changed course to check on the mink ranch.

At a big Canadian bank was tied to the dock when we left Buffalo Narrows. The Cape was waiting for a load of gold ore brought in from Lake Charley for filleting and freezing before taking them to Winnipeg. Manitoba can no longer smelt gold ore as it is no longer a part of the federal gold policy. A 10-hour late our plane sat down at Carleton Lake, where George and Madeline Nelson were waiting.

An hour and forty minutes after leaving Big River, we stopped at a place called the mink ranch. It was a place called the mink ranch. It was a place called the mink ranch. It was a place called the mink ranch. It was a place called the mink ranch. It was a place called the mink ranch.

Comparatively few prices. We expected a very big drop at Lapine's and were greatly amazed when they charged us only a dollar for the meat. As our trip continued we had many more surprises, considering that supplies must be brought in either by boat or plane.

Tuesday night was spent at Buffalo Narrows where, through Walter Teller's explanation, we learned that the mink ranch was a place called the mink ranch. It was a place called the mink ranch. It was a place called the mink ranch. It was a place called the mink ranch. It was a place called the mink ranch.

We stopped at Dave's on our way back from the fish plant and over a cup of coffee heard Dave tell us his story. He was a Canadian man who had been in the mink business for 20 years. He was a Canadian man who had been in the mink business for 20 years. He was a Canadian man who had been in the mink business for 20 years.

Now, Mr. Walte, the U.S. trend is toward fish. And he doesn't look forward to that problem.

Fort Vermilion, 600 miles north of Edmonton—600 miles by rail from the nearest big city—has fairly large area and farther north than any other similar farming section in Canada.

Has Pleasure in Wishing A Happy Xmas and
A Prosperous New Year
To all its Readers

CHRISTMAS, 1954
I hear the bells on Christmas Day
Their old familiar melody play
And wild and sweet
The Words repeat
That once on earth, and will to men.
Christmas is an annual event that makes life worth living.
Its festive season strengthens the ties of affection for our families and our friends.
Christmas gives us a new bright sense of the glory and splendour of life. We see with clearer eyes the beauty and meaning of human faces, the majestic pattern of the coming and going of the seasons, the wonder of the daily pageantry of work and play, the glory of sunlight over a far-flung countryside, sunset over the brooding Rockies, the roar of a city.

We cannot build a truly tower and calibrate our souls in indiference to the dark tumult on every side. But we can build a democracy in liberty and in peace — a kind of a life that shall be most desirable to all men.

Christmas renews our hope and courage and rekindles the better instincts in humanity. It provides a fountain of words with inspiring continuing efforts for a better world.

UNEMPLOYMENT SITUATION

With unemployment already a serious problem in Canada, situation created by striking workers seeking temporary jobs forms added complication.

Competition for jobs becomes keener. Work opportunities for those unemployed through no fault of their own are circumsscribed. Since striking workers are willing to accept lower pay for temporary employment, employment by strike pay general wage level is depressed.

Canadian labor leaders should ponder carefully consequences for trade union movement generally of taking strike action.
Fact that number of striking Ford of Canada employees are temporarily employed or seeking employment in Toronto, Hamilton and other cities might properly be regarded by other workers as unfair labor practice.

Local and District

joyable afternoon.

Measuring Grain in Bins

Here are the rules for determining the number of bushels in a bin or pile.

1. Determine the number of cubic feet of grain.
- (a) For square or rectangular bins multiply the length by the width by the depth.
- (b) For round bins, multiply the radius by the radius by 3.14 by the depth (the radius is one half the diameter).
- (c) For cone-shaped piles, multiply the radius by the radius by 3.14 by the height and divide by 3.
2. Convert cubic feet to measured bushels by multiplying the number of cubic feet by the factor 18.
3. Convert unmeasured bushels to weight by multiplying the number of unmeasured bushels by the factor 56 (the weight of one bushel of wheat is 56 lbs., of barley 48 lbs., of oats 34 lbs., of fax 56 lbs., and of rice 60 lbs.).

That Christmas Dinner

Christmas dinner has become a tradition in many Canadian homes with turkey and all its trimmings. Cooking the turkey to bring out the full flavor is not difficult but there are a few points stressed by the Poultry Products Institute of Canada.

1. Cook the turkey at a low temperature—325° F. Baste or occasionally with fat, cover with a double thickness of cheese cloth, dipped in melted fat or oil, and aluminum foil. A high temperature tends to dry out the meat and scorch the skin. The following table will give a guide as to the length of time to cook the bird.

Ready-to-cook weight—pounds	Approximate roasting time—hours
8-6	35 to 4
10-12	45 to 5
12-14	5 to 5 1/2
14-16	5 1/2 to 6
16-18	6 to 6 1/2
18-20	6 1/2 to 7
20-24	7 to 7 1/2

2. Bread for dressing should be 2-4 days old if fine fluffy crumbs are desired for dressing. If it is moist and toasted French bread can be used. Allow approximately 1 cup of crumbs per pound of estimated (ready-to-cook) poultry weight.

3. Don't stuff the bird one day and roast the next nor damaged. It is to be refrigerated. There is always the chance of intestinal action which may cause food poisoning. If it is to be stuffed, it should be dressed in advance, get the poultry ready for stuffing and refrigerate. Complete the dressing and stuff just prior to cooking in the oven.

4. Don't partially cook one day and finish cooking the next. The temperature reached during a partial cooking would not be high enough to kill any bacteria which might be present. The heating and cooling would facilitate their growth.

5. To judge when poultry is done, press the thick muscle of the drumstick. It will be tender when the meat is cooked. Or if the leg moves readily and gives at the joint, the bird is cooked. A meat thermometer inserted in the thick leg muscle will register 190° F. when poultry is cooked. This takes the guess work out of judging whether the meat is cooked.
